‘Michael the Storyteller’ returning to Defiance

DEFIANCE – Defiance Public Library System (DPLS) invites the community to gather ‘round as family-favorite storyteller Michael O’Malley breathes life into tales from the Christmas tradition.

O’Malley will present “Yuletide Tales” on Friday, Dec 17, beginning at 7 p.m. at the Stroede Center for the Arts, 319 Wayne Ave., Defiance. The event is free and open to all (no tickets required).

Whether sharing an Austrian legend of the first Christmas tree, an early American tale of a family buried in their cabin under the snow, the adventures of a miserly Irish rogue carried away by fairies, or his own family’s Yuletide lore of warmth and magic, Michael aims to use the art of storytelling to bring the spirit of the season alive for his audiences.

“Michael is a talented storyteller who has become one of the community’s family favorites,” said Marja McGuire, DPLS Youth Services Manager. “He has been sharing stories for decades, and we are thrilled to have him back for a wonderful night of holiday tales.”
